VetriScience® and Senior Dog Veterinary Society Partner to Better Support Pets in Their Golden Years

Williston, VT, July 29, 2025 – VetriScience, a pioneer in veterinary nutritional supplements backed by over 40 years of veterinarian-led science and clinical testing, today announced a strategic partnership with the Senior Dog Veterinary Society (SDVS), a leader in continuing education and certification focused on senior canine wellness.

This collaboration is a natural fit, according to Dawn Hickman, Customer Business Manager-Veterinary Channel for VetriScience. “We share a deep commitment to supporting pet health through scientifically backed solutions, and SDVS's education efforts further empower the veterinary community, caregivers, and senior pet advocates to make informed decisions for their beloved companions. Together, we're reinforcing the importance of proactive support for senior pets, driving awareness for better mobility and well-being, and strengthening the foundation for veterinarian-driven care.”

Monica Tarantino, DVM, MBA, co-founder of SDVS, added: “We are excited to partner with a team that is respected in the veterinary industry for their rigorous standard and clinical trials. VetriScience’s science-backed supplements are trusted by veterinarians and will offer practical tools that veterinary teams can recommend with confidence and align with SDVS’s mission to elevate senior dog care.” SDVS's certification program provides training on advanced topics, including chronic pain, nutrition, anesthesia, and end-of-life care.

SDVS will collaborate with VetriScience to educate veterinarians and pet parents on the benefits of nutritional supplements for their dogs.
